Adults to blame says SADD group

In most ways, Melissa Hagg could be described as an average high school student. The 16 year old Lakefield Secondary School student is bright, cheerful, pretty and full of energy. She enjoys watching hockey and is very proud that the local Junior C team won the all-Ontario championship this year.

"My life is good," she admits. "But it would be a heck of a lot better if my mom was alive and I didn't have to wheel around."

Four years ago, Melissa became a victim of a drunk driver. Her mother was killed in the accident and she lost the use of both her legs.

Speaking to about 150 people at Haliburton Highlands Secondary School Thursday, Melissa and her twin sister, Michelle, related her feelings and experiences regarding this serious social problem.

Drinking and driving is not caused only by careless individuals, Melissa said. It is a problem caused by society's view that this is a relatively minor offence.

Melissa said. It is a problem caused by society's view that this is a relatively minor offence.

People are often well aware that their friends may be leaving a party to drive home when they should not be behind the wheel of a car. "Why don't people do something about it?" She said the solution can be as simple as asking the person, "keys please."

The evening seminar was the second of the day for the Grade 11 students. In the afternoon, they spoke to the senior students from HHSS. However, it was the older, evening audience that was forced to accept the blame for the bulk of the problem.

"Teenagers are doing something about it," she told those present in the evening. Students are setting up organizations such as SADD (Students Against Drunk Driving) as an effective means of convincing others drunk driving is not acceptable.

"It's people your age," she said. "They don't think it's as serious a problem as it is."

As the audience listened in almost total silence, Melissa charged, "We don't have the guts to say no, that's enough." She said this attitude has to be changed in order to curb the problem. "I'm sick and tired of reading in the papers about the people who got killed."

Over the last three years in Haliburton County alone, 21 people were killed in drinking-related traffic accidents. Minden OPP Constable Mike Maybee says that of the 484 traffic accidents in the county last year, 61 were caused by drinking drivers and another 13 were impaired drivers. He points out that Haliburton has one of the highest incidences of drinking-related accidents in the province.

Like Melissa, Maybee says the problem stems from a lack of concern or realization of the seriousness of the crime. "The community is not sufficiently concerned about this problem," he said.

The seminars, arranged by the newly-formed HHSS SADD chapter also featured presentations from Peterborough OPP Con-

Delays frustrating, committee determined

The Minden County Town Museum committee is frustrated with delays in obtaining funding for its proposed Heritage Park, but chairman Stan Hill says they are committed to seeing the project through.

"The hopes of the committee have been raised, and they seem to be deflated by the delays," says Hill. However, he says the committee is determined to do whatever it takes to get the project underway.

About 15 people were on hand for a meeting Tuesday at the municipal building, where options to the park were discussed. Guest speaker Dorothy Duncan, from the Ontario Historical Society, pointed out that an easier route to funding might be found by forming a local historical society. She said operational guidelines for such private groups are more lenient than those faced by a public museum committee.

Contacted Wednesday, Hill agreed this is an option, but maintained that he still prefers the idea of a heritage park run by the museum committee. He said a resource centre could be on a smaller scale than that proposed by the committee and it would not be owned by the municipality.

The committee has applied for funding for a feasibility study to investigate the potential of creating a heritage park in Minden. It prepared a 29 page reference guide to outline what is to be looked at in the study.

This guide - called terms of reference - first requires approval from the Ministry of Citizenship and Culture before tenders can be called for a consulting firm to conduct the study.

Marlene Theberge, Regional Consultant with the Ministry, said it could take up to six months before final approval to go ahead with the study is granted. She said it is not unusual for a group to redraft its terms of reference three times before ministry approval. Once this is done, tenders would be called and the ministry would again have to approve the submissions from the consulting firm.

The initial time table set out by the committee called

Up to 50 entries expected for Black Bear Rally

For the second year in a row, the Black Bear Rally will start on Minden's Main Street in front of the Rockcliffe Tavern. At 2 p.m. on Saturday, May 30, the first of an expected 40 to 50 cars will set off on the gruelling seven stage which includes many miles of rough bush road as well as highway.

The first cars are expected to cross the finish line at Glenroy Lodge on Hall's Lake at 8:20 that evening.

Spectators will have ample opportunity to watch the race. At the car safety check at the Minden arena from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m. you can have a look at the vehicles and talk to the drivers. The start of the rally at 2 p.m. is exciting and viewing points set up along the course should also be visited.

Spectator handbooks containing useful information on the race itself and the location of the best sports to watch the action are available at the Rockcliffe Tavern.

The Black Bear is what's known as a "performance rally". That means drivers are judged on the time it takes them to complete the seven stages. The car with the best time wins.

Cars are set off into the stages at one minute intervals.

Competitors are divided into two classes. First are the production class cars, or cars with modified suspension systems but whose engines are much the same as they were in the show room.

And then there is the open class. Cars in this class have been highly modified in their engines and suspension systems. Some run with as much as 250 horsepower.

Many in the open class are professionals; they're the only ones who can afford the expense of maintaining such high performance vehicles.

The production class, on the other hand, is popular among amateur racers and hobby mechanics because the vehicle modifications required are relatively cheap and easily done.

In the production class there are two divisions: "A" for cars with engine displacement up to 1600 cc and "B" for those with displacement over 1600 cc.

Spectators are advised to follow the instructions of rally officials and to keep to the designated viewing points.

for completion of the study by the end of November. However, delays could set the completion date back to some time in the new year.

Hill says the committee is frustrated by the delays, but says they are a determined group. He said they will continue to work toward the completion of their goal. "Whatever it takes, we'll do it," he said.

Once completed, the heritage park will consist of six pioneer style buildings. These will include the present Sterling Bank, a church, a school, a log house, a pole barn and a store. Attached to the store will be a washroom and administration area.

Anson, Hindon and Minden Township has allotted a 250 square foot parcel of land for the park. This will adjoin land which has been set aside for future park development as well as the present library/cultural centre. The plan calls for the six buildings to be located around a village green which will allow for community activities.

Although Hill says the present museum has been successful in producing fine displays, there is a limit to the size of the displays here. The museum is too small to provide storage and has a limited display area. For this reason he said the museum could not accept any more large artifacts.

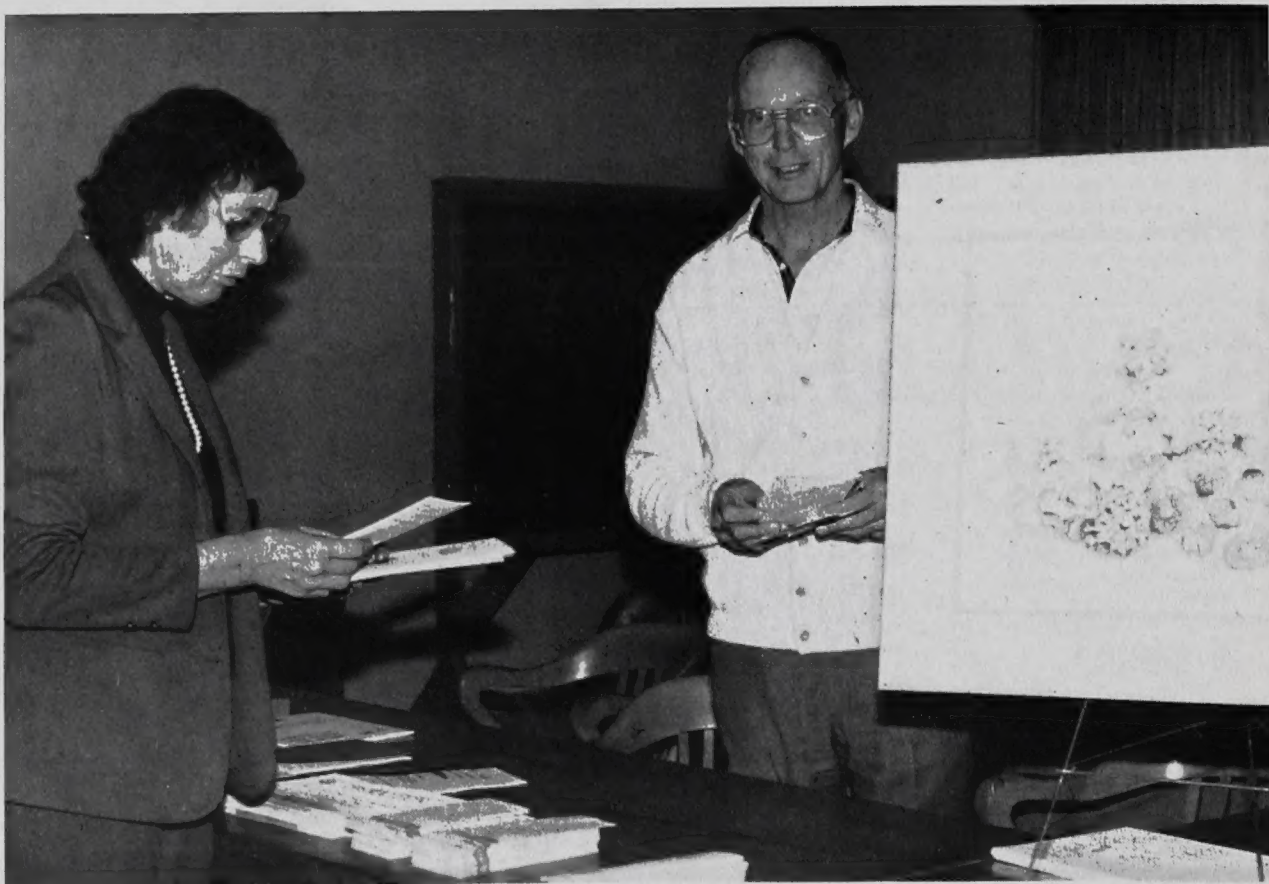

The lighting and ceiling in the museum are said to be unsuitable for storing artifacts and the committee is hesitant to renovate because they eventually want to restore it as a heritage bank.

The goals of the feasibility study are to:

- Determine the amount of community interest in preserving heritage;
- Examine the potential for community funding for the project;

- Find out what funding is available beyond community resources;
- To determine a method of preserving, restoring and displaying artifacts to provide the most exposure to the community and visitors.

Ultimately the study will result in a recommendation

Museum chairman Stan Hill and committee member Freda Hulbig examine some of the material on display at a special meeting last Tuesday evening. The painting by Marion Hill, seen on the right, is the prize in a fund raising raffle organized by the committee.

for the committee to act on. Hill said the recommendation will tell the committee which direction is most appropriate; an expansion of the present facilities, or the construction of the Heritage Park.

Attitudes must change says Crown Attorney stable Peter McGuinness, Haliburton Coroner Dean Stokes and Crown Attorney Chris Meinhart.

Meinhart, who sees drinking and driving offences pass through the court every week, agrees that teenagers pose less of a problem than adults in this regard. He said the vast majority of offences are caused by adult males between the ages of 25 and 40.

Incidents of drinking and driving will continue to flourish if people do not begin to take the problem more seriously, he said. Stiffer fines and penalties are only part of the answer. "The mindset of the community is going to be the best deterrent," said Meinhart.

Dr. Stokes was equally blunt with his remarks. "Ask yourself these questions," he said. "Would I drink and point a gun: yes or no? Then ask, would I drink and aim a 3,500 pound weapon down the road at 80 kilometres per hour?"

Stokes told the audiences, "I get chills when I think of the accidents I have investigated...the scenes of blood, broken glass, body parts and the smell of death."

People often take the attitude that these horrible scenes only happen to other people, he said. "If you are sitting there thinking it will never happen to you, you'd better think again."

Thursday's seminars were the first of a number to be set up by the HHSS SADD chapter. Donna Ireland, co-founder of the group says they will continue to work over the summer, trying to convince people of the seriousness of the problem.

Although the group was only formed recently by Donna and Tracy Miscio, they say they already have a strong backing with about a dozen members.

Following the afternoon seminar, Donna said it is likely that more students will express an interest in helping out. She said the students were moved by Melissa's presentation. People were leaving the gymnasium in tears, she said.

Artist drawn into her subjects

For Mary Cromarty, maturity as an artist came when her children were grown and she had time to paint. A native of Aurora, she began art lessons back in the 50's when she was first married.

It wasn't long before she was "sidetracked" by the demands of two children and the general concerns of family life.

But once again, in 1980, she found herself with time to spare. Having kept her hand in with her painting as best she could over the years, Cromarty enrolled at the Ontario College of Art in Toronto to improve her skills.

She blossomed. With the help of her teachers she went beyond water colours to explore a variety of other media: oils, acrylics, charcoal and even collage.

Recently she had her first show at a commercial gallery - it turned out very successfully - and interest in her work is continuing to grow. She'll graduate at the end of May.

Cromarty's exhibition at the Agnes Jamieson Gallery in Minden (Paintings and Drawings in watercolour, charcoal, pastels and acrylics: May 9 to May 30) includes a good selection of work she completed while at the Ontario College of Art.

One series in particular, called Explorations in Coral, is evidence of her development. It began as an exercise. A teacher asked her to explore a subject - anything that interested her, it didn't matter what. So she chose a piece of coral left over from a family holiday in the Bahamas.

Almost immediately she found herself drawn into her subject. "I just loved everything about the coral, its lighting, its shape. A lot of it was just imagination. In fact, after the first painting, the coral wasn't important - it was all in the mind."

In a lot of ways, she says, the art college changed her focus. "Now I'm not just looking at a subject as a thing - I try to get the idea behind it."

Cromarty has always been interested in arts but she first began formal lessons shortly after she was married, and then it was only one night a week at the local high school. "I remember my husband, Norman, made me my first paint box. But the teacher said it was too small so I had to go out and get another."

In those early years she worked mostly in watercolours and did some drawing.

In 1966, once her family was a bit older, she joined a local Aurora artists' group called King Crafts. Every Thursday she went with the group to paint on location, usually in the country. "It was really helpful," she says, "because we didn't use cameras and you had to rely completely on your eye."

With the group Cromarty painted everything from buildings to floral scenes.

Working with King Crafts also helped to give her confidence in her art. Every November the group would hold a sale of works by the members to try to raise money for rent and materials. That was the first time Cromarty sold her work.

"It was very comforting," she says. "Up until then I had no idea there was a market for the sort of things I was doing."

With the group she also had the opportunity to improve her craft in a series of workshops with well-known artists.

Cromarty remained with King Crafts for ten years, splitting her time between family and art. She kept mostly to watercolours and drawing during those years.

Her work produced at the college is the result of being able to spend more time on her art. It includes a wide variety of media and styles that represents for her a sort of breaking forth, an exploration of new subjects and new ways of seeing.

Interestingly, the exhibition at the Agnes Jamieson Gallery includes a series of nudes done in charcoal. They demonstrate a certain understanding of three-dimensional form.

Cromarty explains, "I applied my charcoal with a handkerchief to give it a soft effect. The teacher was impressed and wanted to know how I'd done it."

The teacher also pointed out - probably quite rightly - that the charcoal drawings had a 'watercolour-like quality.' Cromarty agrees whole-heartedly, because although she's now adept at a great many ways of making art, she began with watercolours and they're still her first love.

Councillor concerned about algae growth in lakes

The growing presence of fibrous and smelly forms of algae in Haliburton lakes is a major concern to cottage owners, says county councillor Don Shortreed.

Raising the issue for the second time at Wednesday's meeting, Shortreed said the two forms of algae could have an adverse effect on the value of properties located on affected lakes.

The level of concern from property owners was highlighted in a recent Ministry of Environment survey that saw an 80 per cent response to questionnaires. More than 5,000 cottagers responded to the questionnaires which were sent out in 1986 in Haliburton, Muskoka and Parry Sound.

Shortreed said the filamentous algae resembles a green fungus mould. "It looks like a blob of Fibreglas," the Deputy Reeve for Sherborne et al said.

Although the study shows the algae is most prevalent in Muskoka and northern Haliburton lakes, Shortreed said there is good potential for it to spread throughout other Haliburton lakes.

While Shortreed is hesitant to call the algae presence concrete evidence of the effects of acid rain, he says there is a direct correlation between its presence and the acidity levels of the lakes. The algae is said to be an early-warning sign indicating the negative effects acid rain is having on sensitive lakes in the Parry Sound, Haliburton and Muskoka areas.

More than 16 per cent of Haliburton's lakes contain a "considerable" amount of the filamentous algae, the survey shows. Almost every lake within a 20 mile radius of Dorset is affected.

Shortreed, who lives on Lake of Bays, says he has had first-hand experience with the algae. Last year a build-up along his shoreline clogged his water line. "It was just like Fibreglas. I had to cut it off," he said.

Although it is not considered a health hazard, Shortreed said it can pose a danger to swimmers. He said people could get tangled up in the algae and be unable to free themselves.

The ministry's study was preceded by a pilot study in 1985 that involved close to 200 cottagers. Results of this pilot study demonstrated that there was a need for concern and gave rise to the major study which involved about 5,200 cottagers.

Filamentous algae is most noticeable by the end of July and is at its highest level by the end of August. It forms in water less than six feet deep and can become very dense along the shoreline.

Shortreed says there is no solution to the problem yet. However, the ministry plans further studies to examine the problem.

A sobering experience

It was sobering to learn this week that the blame for one of Canada's leading social problems, drinking and driving, can be laid squarely on the shoulders of the older generation.

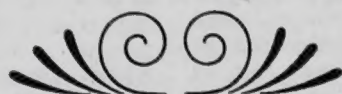

So often we see parents pointing the finger of blame at our youth for many of today's problems. However, Thursday night at Haliburton Highlands Secondary School the tables were turned. Four teenagers, two from HHSS and two from Lakefield, took to the stage for a seminar and told the gathering that people aged 25 to 40 are the main culprits in this problem.

Another disturbing fact revealed at the seminar was that Haliburton has one of the highest incidences of alcohol-related traffic accidents in the province. Over the past few years, the Minden OPP has investigated 21 deaths caused by drinking drivers. Of the 484 traffic accidents in the county last year, 13 involved impaired drivers while another 61 were drink related.

It is evident that stiff penalties being imposed for this type of crime are not doing enough to sufficiently curb the problem. According to the students the only real solution is through a change in attitude. The students are doing their part by forming such groups as SADD (Students Against Drunk Driving). Now it is time for us to follow the lead of the younger generation.

Haliburton County is in the shameful position near the top of the Province's drinking and driving lists. Instead, we should be striving to have the lowest rate.

Few people can deny that, at some point, they have climbed behind the wheel while their senses are impaired by alcohol. For this reason, the crime continues to be viewed as a relatively minor offence by many. This is the attitude that needs to be changed. Drinking and driving is a serious problem, and offenders should be viewed in the same light as thieves and killers.

Guarding the nest.

Hard to find heroes

by Arthur Black

A hero is no braver than an ordinary man, but he is braver five minutes longer.
Ralph Waldo Emerson

Maybe so, Ralph Waldo, but those can be five mighty long minutes. The tricky thing about being a hero is that you never know if you are one until it's too late to change anyway.

I've met one or two genuine heroes in my time, one of them back in my high school days. There was a guy in our school I'll call Dave Orc. I've changed his name because if he's still around he'd still be quite capable of turning me into dog meat with one punch. Orc was big and dumb and mean. So big that he could have wrestled professionally from Grade Nine on if he'd had any talent. So dumb that he stayed in Grade Nine for a record-setting four straight years. So mean that nobody messed with him — ever. And that included the teachers.

One of Orc's favourite diversions was to walk straight down the centre of the high school corridor, eyes hooded, lip curled. He liked watching the rest of us scramble to get out of his way. Once in a while he'd run into a knot of kids with their backs turned, not paying attention. Orc would go through them like a Department of Highways snowplough through a drift.

But Orc is not the hero of this piece. Orc was a bully and a bum. There was another kid in my class who was one of the least heroic-looking people I've ever seen. He was kind of homely and gawky and he always wore a white shirt. He was quiet and friendless — the kind of kid who often got a table all to himself in the school cafeteria. One day this kid was standing in the hall with his back turned when Dave Orc steamed into him, sending his binder flying and textbooks fluttering. In a flawless move, ballet-like in its elegance, the kid turned around, reached 'way, 'way up...and smacked Orc right on the nose.

It was such an astounding feat that there wasn't so much as a gasp from those of us watching. None of us had imagined you could even reach Orc's nose, much less punch it. Even Orc was flabbergasted — so much so that he looked foolish and clumsy when he tried to retaliate. Three teachers were on him before he could even reach the kid.

I was a shy Grade Niner at the time, but I had to seek out the kid in the white shirt and find out why a guy would deliberately flirt with oblivion by doing what he did. He looked at me as if he hadn't totally thought it through himself. "I don't know why I hit him" he said, "I just had to do it."

Now if I had been that kid I would have changed schools, run away to sea — stopped wearing those conspicuous white shirts at the very least. But he didn't, and Orc never bothered him again. The kid in the white shirt became my first genuine hero.

Met another one in the newspaper the other day — an Arizona skydiver by the name of Gregory Robertson. A few weeks ago Robertson was participating in a mass sky dive outside of Phoenix. He was soaring toward the ground, spreadeagled, drinking in the view, waiting for the proper time to open his parachute when something hurtled past him, streaking toward the earth. It was Debbie Williams a 31 year old novice skydiver. She'd collided with another diver, knocked herself out and was now dropping like a stone to certain death on the desert below. Robertson watched her, murmured to himself 'Aw bleep, I wonder if I can do this?' Then he tucked his head, pointed his arms like Superman and went into a headfirst dive toward the unconscious, plummeting Williams.

You have to understand that time was running out. They were both screaming toward earth and more important, towards that critical moment beyond which there's no point in opening your parachute because you're going to be squashed like a bug on a

For many people an interest in natural history begins with observing birds in their own backyards. Many of the keenest observers are young people who want to be able to identify what they see. For those your birdwatchers or for any new birder, here are some things you might do to increase both your knowledge and your pleasure.

If you haven't already done so, get yourself a pair of sturdy lightweight binoculars. A pair from the local catalogue will do fine to start with. You will need to practice using them until they feel like an extension of yourself. Persevere, the rewards are great.

Once you have observed the brown thrasher's mad gold-rimmed eye and linked that crazy eruption of song with the same bird, he stays forever in your mind's eye as an engaging eccentric.

Also, you'll never realize the full beauty of a bird's colouring unless you learn to use binoculars. You will need to be patient and watch for movement; then, keeping your eye on that spot, raise the glasses to your eye. With practice this operation becomes automatic.

The other things you will need are a notebook and a good field guide. Jot down details about a new bird. Is it as big as a sparrow? What

Editor:

After the shock and hard work has settled down, I would like to take this time to thank the dedicated and fearless men who fight fires in our community.

Monday, April 27 we awoke to a blazing fire in our garage, by the time we got out there and moved the car and truck it was too late to save anything else. Meanwhile the Minden fire department was called and we waited, watching the building burn, praying the house wouldn't go too.

The men who arrived to save our house and protect the people on the property were efficient and organized. They quickly assessed the situation and began to protect our property so that the loss was kept to a minimum.

This was an ordeal I do not want to go through again and hope none of you will either.

Here's to the men in our community who risk their lives to save others, without their dedication and community spirit, Minden would be sorely lacking.

What do you think about...

Capital punishment

by Bill Kulas

With the recent introduction of a motion for a free vote on the reinstatement of capital punishment in Canada, the Canadian Parliament has moved to address an issue of great importance to our society.

No doubt this issue will receive much media attention as well as public attention. Support for the death penalty in its use for first degree, planned, premeditated murder, as well as for the killing of police officers, law enforcement agents, serial killers, contract killers, hostage killers and kidnap killers.

Many feel very strongly against the reinstatement of the death penalty because it is wrong to take a person's life and that the right to human life is inalienable, even to murderers.

This first part of my two part write up will look at the facts on homicide in Ontario and Canada as compiled by the Policy and Planning Branch of the Ontario Provincial Police. The facts are as follows:

(1) The number of homicides, i.e. murders, manslaughters and infanticides have increased 175% from 1962 to 1983. There were 249 in 1962 compared to 682 in 1983.

(2) The homicide rate, i.e. homicides per 100,000 population, has gone up 104% from 1962 to 1983 (from 1.34 to 2.74 homicides per 100,000 people).

(3) The number of murders increased 188% from 1962 to 1983 (217 to 625).

(4) Actual homicides numbered 668 in 1976 increasing to an all time high of 707 in 1977 then steadily dropping to 593 in 1980. Since 1980, homicides have grown from 593 to 682 in 1983.

Now let's look at police murders in our country.

Comparing three time periods as defined by rising homicide rates and the falling use of capital punishment, the number of police murders did not change significantly and the murder rate per 1,000 police actually declined. 1961-67, 23 police were murdered. 1968-76, 3 police were murdered. 1977-84, 28 police were murdered.

The assumption that our courts have been soft and too lenient toward convicting for murder may hold a lot of merit. Murder rates between 1961 to 1981 have increased on average 8.6% per year. The total conviction rate for murder over this same period of time has not kept pace, increasing 5% per year (convictions for murder and lesser offences resulting from a murder charge.)

The conviction rate for murder for persons originally charged with murder has only gone up 2% per year, a rate 4.3 times lower than the murder rate. An ironic trend, don't you think?

windshield, chute or no chute. Robertson was betting he could reach Williams, pull her ripcord, disentangle himself and pull his ripcord, all in time to save both of them.

He won the bet. Williams hit the ground unconscious and she hit hard, breaking a couple of ribs. But thanks to Robertson her parachute was open and she lived.

Reminds me of another aerial heroics story. In 1941, a New Zealand Flying Officer by the name of James Ward won a Victoria Cross for himself by climbing out onto the wing of his Wellington bomber to put out a fire in the starboard engine. All of this 13,000 feet above the Zuider Zee, with Luftwaffe fighters buzzing around and enemy flak coming up from below. Ward may have been brave in the thick of battle but he was mute with stage fright when he had to face Winston Churchill for the ceremony at 10 Downing Street.

"You must feel very humble and awkward in my presence," rumbled the Prime Minister.

"Y-y-yes sir," peeped Ward.

"Then" said the British Bulldog, "you can imagine how humble and awkward I feel in yours."

Speech supports local economy

- by John Eakins, MPP -

As I've mentioned in this column many times before, two of the most important sectors of the economy in Victoria and Haliburton are tourism and agriculture.

I was therefore pleased to see significant portions of the recent Throne Speech devoted to these two areas.

As the speech stated "tourism is a key source of employment and revenue for the Ontario economy." It is estimated that tourism accounts directly and indirectly for at least 9 per cent of total employment in the province and 6 per cent of gross provincial product.

During the past year, my government has consulted widely with the tourism industry through a series of sixteen roundtable discussions held throughout the province.

This dialogue is leading to the development of strategic directions for this important industry. Some initiatives stemming from these consultations have already been implemented.

We will also reinforce the major steps taken during the last year to assist our tourism industry, particularly in northern and eastern Ontario. More funds will be provided to the Destination North and East program.

A Heritage Inns program will also be introduced to preserve the architectural flavour of small Ontario communities enhance their many heritage festivals, and provide a unique tourism experience. The program will complement our efforts to help small communities revitalize their downtown area. Increased funding will be provided to improve provincial parks.

This commitment to the tourism industry will result in increased economic activity in Haliburton and Victoria Counties and throughout Ontario.

At the same time, the government has reiterated its continuing desire to work with the agricultural community to develop strategies which will assist our farmers.

The Throne Speech stated that "economic conditions throughout this decade have severely tried the financial, physical and human resources of the primary agriculture sector."

Changes in market conditions, primarily production technologies, demographics and lifestyles have all presented challenges to the industry.

The government will act to meet these challenges and sustain a globally competitive agriculture and food industry by improving the farm tax reduction program.

A land stewardship program will be introduced to encourage crop rotation and farm investment in soil and water environmental projects.

In addition, continued assistance will be provided through such programs as the family farm interest rate reduction program and the beginning farmers assistance program.

Economic growth in Haliburton and Victoria Counties depends on a number of various factors and I am confident the commitment shown to these two sectors of the area will result in both immediate and long term benefits.

Hospital fund total $109,359 the Haliburton Spring Fling firework display by Dr. Heyes and staff from his office, along with staff from the Haliburton Hospital, raised $610.44.

- from ValuMart, a donation of $153.

According to fund raising chairman, Barb Dawson, the public subscription portion of the funding effort has reached $109,359.51. The target for this sector is $240,000.

The Wagon Wheel Restaurant has undergone some extensive renovations under the new ownership of John and Maria Kovacs. And after a lot of hard work, the Kovacs held the grand opening on Saturday.

Wagon Wheel has new appeal

Visitors to Minden's Wagon Wheel Restaurant and Motel will be in for a pleasant surprise this week as renovations near completion under the new ownership of John Kovacs. Kovacs was busy Thursday tending to final details in order to be ready for the grand opening on Saturday. He said he wanted to have everything in top condition to provide a good first impression for the opening. The restaurant has changed significantly under the Kovacs' guidance. He has recarpeted, painted, re-finished much of the furnishings, installed a cathedral-type ceiling and placed wood panelling on some of the walls. From top to bottom, the restaurant has taken on a new appeal, which he hopes will bolster business.

Kovacs and his wife, Maria, moved to Minden in January when they purchased the Wagon Wheel. Originally from Brantford, Kovacs said he initially wanted to buy a motel in this area. However, he said he is pleased with the way the restaurant is coming along and he had plans for improvements to the motel units as well.

Kovacs was drawn to this area after spending a number of his vacations in Minden, Haliburton and Dorset areas. He said he enjoys fishing and he really likes the area.

The New Wagon Wheel restaurant will attempt to cater to family dining and entertainment. Kovacs plans to serve all home-cooked meals and in this pursuit, he has hired "an excellent chef" who will be starting soon. Now that the grand opening has passed, he plans to have daily specials for dinner and luncheon dining.

In addition to fine food, Kovacs plans to have nightly entertainment in the dining area. For the opening week he said there will be a country and western band playing.

Although he had barely completed his renovations, Kovacs was already visualizing future plans on Thursday. For the restaurant area, he hopes to put an addition on the back to increase the seating.

In addition to his plans for renovations to the present motel units, Kovacs hopes to add an additional 16 units. "If everything goes right, I might start with the motel this year," he said.

Presently there are 12 motel units as well as two summer cabins. He plans to have double beds in each of the motel units. The cabins will have beds in each of the bedrooms.

colour is it? Where is the colour? Is the breast streaked? Is it in the trees or on the ground? Did it hop or walk? Did it have any distinguishing features like wing bars, eyestripe or crown patch? If you have been watching a brown bird, smaller than a sparrow, with a buff streaked breast, a dark eyestripe and an orange crown patch, which walked like a little mechanical toy, you will be able to turn to your birdguide and identify it as an ovenbird.

Now, a word of caution. In your enthusiasm to see a new bird, you may start to forget the reason you've been looking in the first place, interest in these amazing little creatures. It follows, then, that your main concern will be for their welfare and that there are certain things you will want to do. You will want to observe without disturbing.

Your binoculars allow you to follow the many trips to the spruce of the mourning doves with nesting materials without having to get close enough to disturb the builders. If you are fortunate enough to know the location of a nest with eggs, you will be careful never to frighten the bird off the nest and you will protect the nest from the interference of others. The welfare of the bird will always come first with you.

When you move out into the woods to pursue your hobby, watch where you are walking. Stick to paths and avoid trampling plants or disturbing underbrush. Always ask permission before you enter someone's property in pursuit of a bird. And go quietly. You don't want to alarm the birds you have come to see. Besides, sound will soon begin to tell more about what birds there are than sight.

Birdwatching will bring you years of pleasure and relaxation and lead you to keep learning without effort. Besides, in an uncertain world, there is an immense reassurance in the recurring cycle of migration.

If you are a young naturalist between the ages of 10-15 with a desire to increase your knowledge of all aspects of nature in enjoyable surroundings, there is a special place for you. From August 23-August 30 the F.O.N. will run a camp program for young naturalists. The Canadian National Sportsmen's shows will sponsor four young people to attend the camp. If you would like to be one of them, write to Pam Hickman, Federation of Ontario Naturalists, 355 Lesmill Road, Don Mills, Ontario, M3B 2W8. All you need to do is explain why you would like to go. Let's hear from you.

Tourism program announced by Eakins

A new $1.5 million program to turn Ontario into the "Hospitality Province" was launched recently by John Eakins, Ontario Minister of Tourism and Recreation.

"Ontario - We'll make you feel Incredible!" the theme of the new program, capitalizes on the successful "Ontario Incredible!" advertising campaign.

The Tourism Awareness and Hospitality Training Program is designed to make all Ontarians, especially those involved in the tourism industry, aware of the importance of tourism and their ability to increase tourism by extending a warm welcome to travellers.

"We have the resources and the people to make Ontario known as the 'Hospitality Province' ", said Eakins. "We intend to make all Ontarians aware of the role they can play in making visitors welcome so they'll want to return to Ontario again and again."

The program will be conducted on a long-term basis with a goal to train 20,000 people during the first year. Ongoing Ministry funding of $500,000 per year has been allocated to the program with a matching commitment of funding, goods and services expected from the private sector.

Four corporate sponsors have already committed $50,000 each to the project. Those endorsing the "We'll Make You Feel Incredible!" campaign are: Coca-Cola Limited, Dairy Bureau of Canada, H.J. Heinz Company of Canada Limited, and Nabisco Brands Limited.

Corporate sponsors, businesses providing goods and services and all employers training at least 50 per cent of their staff, will become part of the "Hospitality Network". Membership in the network will be identified by a plaque in each business. Consumers will be urged to look for the plaques, which signify service excellence. Examples of current participants are: Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce The Commonwealth. Holiday Inns of Canada Limited, Delta Hotels, Eatons of Canada Limited, McDonald's Restaurants of Canada Limited, and Voyageur.

Registration for the seminars can be arranged by calling collect to the Hospitality Hotline: (416) 963-3406. Registration begins immediately and workshops start in September.

"The Tourism Awareness and Hospitality Training

Program is of vital importance to all of us," said Eakins. "It is an educational program that will not only teach people how to be better hosts, but will make all Ontarians proud of the tourism industry in this province."

Councillors play resolution roulette

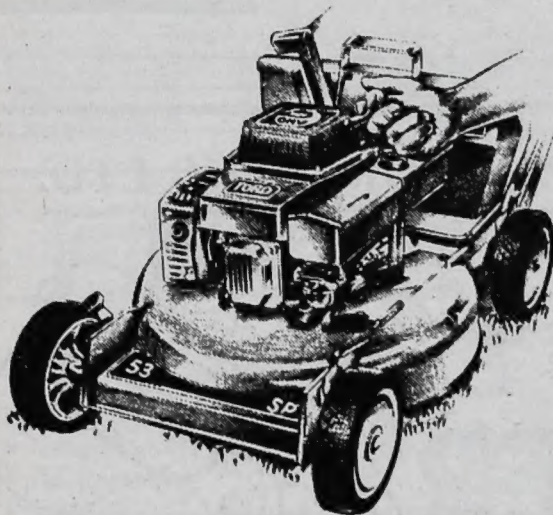

Confusion over what to do with the mounting number of requests for support from outside municipalities has prompted Haliburton County Council to investigate possible solutions.

At Wednesday's meeting, County Council was asked to lend support to resolutions from six outside municipalities. Warden Murray Fearrey said this is getting to be a problem. "We're commenting on things we know very little about." He added that many of these resolutions have little or no consequence in Haliburton County.

Of the six resolutions dealt with Wednesday, council took no action on two, referred one to the Association of Municipalities of Ontario, defeated two, and referred one to committee for further study.

Fearrey suggested the resolutions with no relevance to the county should be referred to AMO. He said council is faced with a growing number of resolutions from outside municipalities that need back up information before being dealt with. He suggested these be returned to the municipality where they originated.

Second loss for kickers

by Jim Milne

The Dixie Lee soccer team lost their second game of the season 5-3 to Bracebridge Juniors.

Bracebridge scored first from a crowd directly in front of the Dixie Lee net. Midway through the first half, Hans Walter tied the score and Dixie Lee was pressing forward with a number of good chances for ten minutes in the second half before Bracebridge scored two quick goals in succession. When Dixie Lee continued to press forward, Mike Hatkoski was bowled over while trying to head the ball. A penalty kick awarded to Dixie Lee was put in by Hans Walter because Hatkoski had been taken from the field.

Although the score was only 3-2 for Bracebridge, Dixie Lee couldn't sustain their momentum. Andy Shapiera who had played steadily in the Dixie Lee net misplayed a ball in a crowd. A Bracebridge player made a clear shot on an open net count.

As the game drew to a close Bracebridge and Dixie Lee traded goals. Brian Moore scored the Dixie Lee goal from Joe Mancuso.

This game was part of the Muskoka District's Early Season Tournament. Eight teams played in Bracebridge between 1:00 p.m. and 5:00 p.m. Sunday while the ninth provided officials and organizers. It was a good opportunity for all the teams to get acquainted.

Dixie Lee will reschedule their game with Gravenhurst and attend instead a tournament in Toronto which is sponsored by the West Rouge Blues.

New doctor finds warm welcome in Minden

Filling the shoes of Dr. Lodenquai would be a pretty tall order for anyone—after all, he served for ten years as one of Minden's two doctors. But since taking over the Minden Medical Clinic last October, Lodenquai's old practice, Dr. Steve Dawson says he's found the people of the community friendly and pleased to make use of his services.

"I like it here," says Dawson. "Everyone has welcomed my wife Barbara and me into the community and we plan to stay."

He said it was an easy practice to take over because Lodenquai had been on such good terms with his patients.

And the practice is getting bigger. Quickly. "I'm getting more patients all the time," he says, "because I'm on call every other night it gets a bit hectic sometimes."

To cope with the extra work, Dawson will be taking on two new doctors, graduates from the University of Toronto, in July. "This way" he says, "we'll be able to deal with the higher volume of patients."

Dawson himself is a recent University of Toronto graduate. After completing a degree in medicine in 1982, he spent a year at the 28 bed hospital in Marathon, Ontario.

Then he went to Wawa, a drive of about two hours to the east, where he worked in a larger hospital with 35 beds.

In those two hospitals he had the chance to get the sort of experience he never could have if he'd stayed in Toronto. "In the big city hospitals," he explains, "there's a specialist for everything. As a new doctor you're at the bottom of the totem pole and it takes a long time before you have the authority to treat anything except what the senior doctors leave you."

With only seven beds, the Minden hospital is small, but Dawson still has plenty of opportunities to deal with interesting cases.

He and his wife have just bought property on Mountain Lake on which they plan to build their home. Dawson says it's an excellent location because it's close to the hospital. As the lot is on the lake, he'll also have plenty of chances to practice windsurfing - his favourite sport.

Dawson says Minden is unique in a number of ways that he finds interesting as a doctor.

The large geriatric population in the village is one of them. Another is the huge summer influx of young people and families from the city.

Dawson is keen to improve the medical facilities available in Minden and he wants to inform people about how to stay healthy.

Recently he held a public talk on the effects of cholesterol on the human body, and it was very successful. In fact, it went so well that Dawson is now planning a series of similar talks on health issues like smoking and high blood pressure.

"It's very gratifying when things like that work out," he says of his cholesterol talk.

Dawson has some ideas about improving the Minden Hospital as well. "We have seven beds here but we could certainly use a few more," he says.

Extra equipment would also come in handy. He's grateful for the use of the ECG machine donated to the hospital last year by a generous patient (it cost $10,000) but points out there's plenty of room for more equipment.

"The only problem is cost," he explains. "The sort of things we need run at many thousands of dollars."

He says it would be a useful thing if Minden had its own fund raising project like Haliburton. That way the village could begin to consider much needed improvements to its hospital.

Also, Dawson says, Minden could do with a medical laboratory for doing tests. "At present, all our lab work has to go to Haliburton or Peterborough, but it would be great if it could be done here."

Dawson realizes that changes take time - especially those that cost money - so he's going to start simply, by doing things that are within his reach. He's already arranged for more doctors and he's begun a public information campaign. At this rate, other developments can't be far off.

Man charged in Gooderham theft

A Gooderham resident has been charged in connection with a break-in at the liquor store in that community. The store was entered during the evening of May 14 after an intruder gained access by breaking a window.

Charged in the incident is 24 year old Dawsey Haywood.

Hustlers take season opener

submitted

The Hustlers have opened the 1987 season with a pair of wins.

On Monday night they travelled to Bobcaygeon where pitchers Jack Snell and Brian Shaw combined on a four hitter to defeat the home town squad by the score of 4-3. This was a very close contest as it remained scoreless until the fourth inning when Colin Newell slammed the first home run of the year.

The Hustlers added another run in the fifth on three straight singles by Bob Johnson - Rick Hartwick and Greg Newell.

Bobcaygeon came back with a run in the bottom of the fifth before the Hustlers made it 4-1 in the seventh on singles by Greg Newell - Barry Shaw and a double by Colin Newell. Bobcaygeon added 2 runs in the bottom of the seventh to make it close. Winning pitcher was Brian Shaw.

On Thursday night, the locals hosted Janetville and Jack Snell tossed a two hit shutout as the Hustlers pounded the visitors by the score of 9-0.

The Hustlers did most of the damage in the third inning when Johnson tripled, Snell and Barry Shaw singled, Dwight Sisson and Andrew Burk and Dave Dollo hit straight doubles for five runs. They added three more in the fifth and one in the sixth for the win.

The Hustlers welcome the addition of Bob Johnson, Dwight Sisson and Brian Mulholland to the team this year and are looking forward to another fine year.

Also this year we would like to welcome the addition of the Haliburton Juniors into the league. They play their games this coming week as they travel to Lindsay on Tuesday and host the Woodville Merchants on Thursday night at 8:00 p.m. at the Minden Ball park. Let's get out and give the boys a boost!

Al-Anon marks anniversary

submitted

Families of Alcoholics around the world celebrate Al-Anon's birthday May 1.

Until recently, the image of Al-Anon Family Groups was one of spouses of alcoholics. Today, more than ever the growth of Al-Anon groups is reflected by the increase in the numbers of children's groups registering each day at Al-Anon Family Group headquarters.

Since 1951, Al-Anon has been a constant resource for families of alcoholics. From its small beginnings with 87 groups in 1951, it has grown into a worldwide fellowship of 27,000 groups in 83 countries. The makeup of the average Al-Anon meeting today is different than it was 36 years ago. We're no longer only wives of AA members sitting around a table. The Al-Anon fellowship grew from wives to include men, women and children of every conceivable relationship to the alcoholic - parents, teenagers, adult children, lovers, brothers and sisters, co-workers etc.

May 1987, marks Al-Anon Family Group's 36th birthday and its 27,000 groups are joining in the celebration. With the disease of alcoholism wreaking havoc with millions of lives each year, more and more people are coming into Al-Anon and Alateen. At their first meeting, newcomers express a feeling like "coming home" after a long, weary journey. For those suffering family members Al-Anon is now what it has always been - a safe haven where they can share their hurts and joys and receive the acceptance and understanding so vital to recovery.

New books dot library shelves

by Joel Levis

One of the best things about working in a public library is that you get to examine the new books first. We do our best to get requested materials out in a hurry but there's always time to see what is new and exciting in the branches of Haliburton County Public Library. So here's what you have got to look forward to very soon, and remember, if you can't see it, ask for it!

We've just bought a new series of materials from Reader's Digest which includes The Reader's Digest Mother & Baby Book with a small, specialized market but according to those who know, very useful for those with questions about the practical side of such things...You and the Law from Reader's Digest which updates our older edition. It won't replace a lawyer but there should be enough basic information about general law to keep you out of trouble but frankly, not enough to get you off! The Hobbit by J.R.R. Tolkien which is a must for fantasy fiends and those interested in the mythical world of Middle Earth. Frodo finds the ring and this serves as an opener for the other big trilogy by Tolkien, namely Lord of the Rings which follows the adventures of the Hobbits as they save the world from evil for the good. From the local level, we have had a copy of David Bishop's Perceptions and Attitudes of Recreational Anglers Towards Acid Precipitation in Haliburton County generously donated to us. It's available through your local branch upon request...One Day the Rabbi Bought a Cross by Harry Kemelman brings yet another Rabbi Small mystery to the light of day as the good Rabbi uses Talmudic logic to solve a murder. A dandy job and a real neat mystery for those who like that kind of thing...And who can forget Jacqueline Briskin's Dreams are not Enough a Dallas-type special love story that will keep those who really like this author in a happy mood...and just about to fall off the pile, we have a few more Reader's Digest music books including Remembering Yesterday's Hits and as well, Country & Western Music. Full music, words, everything that you need to get the little "doggy" along or wherever you want to see him go.

Writer will assist authors

The Honourable Lily Munro, Minister of Citizenship and Culture has announced a special grant to the Haliburton County Public Library to fund participation in the Writers-in-Libraries program.

In releasing the information, Joel Levis, county librarian, said that the library community would be "overjoyed" at the information because it would introduce an entirely new aspect of contemporary public library services to the county. As a result of the approval of the application, the professional writing skills and abilities of Susan Swan, a well-known and proven author in her own right, will be made available to anyone in the county who wants to make use of them.

Levis stated that "the purpose of the program is to provide assistance to members of the community who want to write, want to learn how to be successful at the craft, who may have a manuscript that they would like to have evaluated in a sympathetic and constructive manner or maybe just meet and talk to someone who is doing what many people would like to do. This is going to be a tremendous asset to the already considerable pool of creative talent that is in the county now."

Ms. Swan will maintain an office in the headquarters of the Haliburton County Public Library where she will meet with people and advise them; she will also be visiting other branches of the Haliburton County Public Library to provide similar services all over the county. She will be in place from June 1 to August 31.

In conclusion, Levis said

Writer Susan Swan will be available through Haliburton County Libraries to assist aspiring authors. Her three month residency begins June 1.

that "we have had just the most incredible support and interest imaginable with regard to this project. John Eakins, Ms. Munro, everyone has been just so very supportive, proving yet again that 'better public service does begin in Haliburton County.'"

More details will be announced in the next few weeks but in the meantime, anyone wishing further information or to arrange for participation by Ms. Swan in the events of their community should contact the county librarian at 457-2241.

Soyers Lake Assoc. meeting May 17

The spring meeting of the Soyers Lake Ratepayers' Association was held at the PineStone Inn on Sunday evening, May 17, and was attended by 48 members. In addition to hearing reports from the various committees and making plans for the future, members had an opportunity to discuss matters of concern with invited guest Bern Berry, Deputy Reeve of Anson, Hindon and Minden.

Mr. Berry was asked a number of questions by residents along Soyers Lake Road respecting the cutting of trees. The residents were upset at the way the entire 66 foot allowance had been laid bare along what had been a picturesque country road. In the absence of the Roads Superintendent who had a prior engagement, Mr. Berry explained that the trees were cut to make room for the larger blades of the Township's new snowplough and grader, and that the appearance would be acceptable when the project was finished. A future meeting is to be arranged between the Roads Superintendent and affected residents.

Questions were also raised about the delay in implementing the new Zoning Bylaw passed by council in 1985. Mr. Berry said it had been held up by the Ontario Municipal Board because several objections had been received from local ratepayers.

The Association urged that council press for OMB approval at the earliest possible date. Mr. Berry was also asked to look into the possibility of council's adopting a Noise Bylaw similar to Dysart's Bylaw No. 86-25.

Mr. Berry advised property owners to exercise their right to acquire their lakeshore road allowances while they can. He outlined the many recreational activities for retired people in Minden and noted that monthly information sheets are available at the Chamber of Commerce information centre on Highway 121.

The President, Lew McCorrison, announced that at the spring meeting of the Federation of Ontario Cottagers' Associations in Toronto, plaques were presented by the Ontario Minister of the Environment to a number of cottagers' associations in recognition of more than ten years participation in Ontario's lake water testing program. The plaque for Soyers Lake Association was presented to Ross Partridge, who has diligently carried out this work on behalf of the Association. In response to the members' applause, Ross Partridge said he has now retired to Soyers Lake and intends to continue the testing every week.

A moment's silence was observed in honour of Mrs. Emily Blair who died in January.

Under other business, several members said that the Nordic Trails in the Haliburton area provided excellent cross-country skiing and the increased seasonal rate was well justified.

In the Neighbourhood Watch program, there were no break-ins reported over the winter, but the Keewaydin Road sign had disappeared for the second time.

Concern was expressed regarding the defoliation of trees by caterpillars and a pamphlet about the gypsy moth was brought to the members' attention.

Plans were made for the annual Corn Roast and Regatta to be held in August with John Campbell as chairman.

Voices of HHSS

Hi!
Well, to further last week's column about the library. Still in the planning stages, it probably will not be completed for a long while. Therefore, the current kindergarten students throughout the county will have something to look forward to!

Mr. Phillips, the school librarian is pleased with the proposed library, stating that he hopes to have certain areas available for group work and studying purposes. This would mean more privacy for those students with their noses dug into the books!

Last Thursday, May 21, those competitors who qualified for the Eastern Ontario finals went to Ottawa. Keep any eye out for results in the paper. It's good to see that our school has such great athletes.

The school's chapter of SADD (Students Against Drunk Driving) held meetings with students and parents alike. A constable from the OPP, a local coroner, two Lakefield girls affected by an accident involving an impaired driver and a Crown prosecutor spoke out against drunk driving. Hopefully a great impact was felt from these seminars upon students and community members.

On Tuesday, May 19, the grade 11 English class went to the Shaw Festival at the Niagara-On-The-Lake to see "Marathon 33" written by June Havoc (a marathon dancer during the Depression). They even got to travel on a Travelways bus! Everyone enjoyed the trip and would like to thank the teachers and our bus driver Walter for dodging all the traffic jams with their driving skills and navigation!

Archery competition is taking place this Wednesday in Lakefield.

We wish them luck!

New store features latest men's styles and fashions

Fashionable clothing for men is the mainstay of the newest store to open in the Highlands. Images for Men is the name of the enterprise operated by Ken Stevens.

The store shares the name with another outlet in the Highway 35 Mall, Images for Women. The two stores have much more in common, however. Images for Women is owned and operated by his wife, Sandy.

The two outlets complement each other, both offering quality clothing with a fashionable touch.

Ken is a newcomer to the clothing business, but not new to the Highlands. For the past three years he worked as night manager at the PineStone Inn. When his wife recently opened her store in the mall, he realized the adjacent retail outlet was unrented and decided to give it a try.

"I was aware there was a gap in the style of clothing available for men in the Highlands," Ken commented. "There are a large number of stores catering to the everyday needs of men, but none carrying fashionable men's wear. I realized that someone had to take the first step and...here I am."

The store has been open for several weeks now and includes a line of fashionable and casual summer wear. Also in stock are polo shirts, dress shirts and swim suits. In the autumn, the stock will become a little more dressy, reflecting the needs of the area. Included in the fall fashions is a line of sweaters by Tundra, dress pants, sports jackets and ties. Images also is an agent for Freeman Formal Rentals and features a line of men's colognes.

One of the services offered through the two Images outlets is colour analysis. Ken notes that the analysis is just as important for men as it is for women.

The process assess an individual's skin tone to determine the clothing colour schemes to make the man look his best. "It is important for a business man to look his best at all times," Ken notes, "the analysis will ensure that you can select the right clothing for the right occasion. Not only will others appreciate your choice of colours in your clothing, you will be more comfortable and at ease with the clothes you are wearing." The analysis is done by Sandy, a certified colour consultant.

Ken Stevens is the proprietor of the Images for Men in the Valu-mart mall.

Minden hosts Women's Institute annual

submitted

Minden United Church was the scene of the 87th annual meeting of Victoria East Women's Institutes on May 12.

The Minden Women's Institute welcomed the other ten branches of Victoria East.

Mrs. C.W. Adams, District President, presided over the opening exercises, then introduced Mrs. Marion Thomson, our provincial board director. Mrs. Thomson conducted the formal ratification of the district directors. Guests from Victoria West were welcomed by Mrs. Adams.

After a business period, Mrs. Thompson brought us up to date on happenings at provincial level. She mentioned the W.I. days at the Erland Lee Home at Stoney Creek on June 1 to 3, 1987 and also the Harvest festival at the Lee on October 1 and 2. Hopefully some of our members will be able to attend.

Mrs. Gordon Fell, curator of the Tweedsmuir History reminded us to view the impressive display of histories at the back of the church and P.R.C. Mrs. G. Patterson summarized the W.I. events and happenings of the past year.

The Rural Organization

specialist, Ann Hankinson spoke briefly on the newly created office of program co-ordinator in the W.I.

After a delicious lunch served by the Minden ladies, we enjoyed some music, as two young ladies, Mrs. Toos Reid and Mrs. Barbara Fawcett sang a number of gospel songs.

The Memorial Service was conducted by Minden members Mrs. C. Wilson and Mrs. D. Berry and five deceased members were remembered. Mrs. Thomson conducted the election of officers and the new executive is as follows:

Past president Mrs. M.W. Robson, Fenelon Falls; president Mrs. C.W. Adams, Bobcaygeon; first vice president - Mrs. C. Thrasher, Burnt River; second vice president Mrs. H. Crane, Norland; secretary-treasurer Mrs. A. Griffin, Fenelon Falls; P.R.O. Mrs. Russell Lynch, Norland; programme co-ordinator Mrs. Stanley Stewart, Norland; curator Mrs. Phyllis Fell, Fenelon Falls; resolutions Mrs. Oscar Carew, Cameron; nominating committee Mrs. H. Crane, Norland, Mrs. M. Tackman, Fenelon Falls, Mrs. C. Lacey, Minden. Auditors Mrs. Wm. Davis, Mrs. Marion Thomson, provincial board director for the Women's Institute congratulates the executive of the Victoria East Women's Institute elected at the group's annual meeting May 12 in Minden.

Fenelon Falls; Mrs. G. Flett Fenelon Falls. Delegate to the convention Mrs. C.W. Adams; alternate Mrs. C. Thrasher.

Norland W.I. invited the branches to meet at Norland for the 1988 district annual.

Mrs. Adams had used the following when she gave her president's report and it seems fitting as an ending to this article.

The Four Faiths

Faith in God: God without man is still God. Man without God is nothing.

Faith in yourself: I am only one, but I am one; I cannot do everything but I can do something And what I should do and can do, by the grace of God I will do.

Faith in your fellow man: Be true to others and others will be true to you. If you have lost faith in human nature, discover where you have gone wrong yourself.

Faith in the future of our W.I. The past cannot be changed, the future is still in your power. There is no failure except in no longer trying. There is no defeat except from within. No really insurmountable barrier save our own inherent weakness of purpose.

Mrs. Gerald Patterson, District P.R.O.

Trent-Severn waterway report

A light rain on Sunday May 10 and again on Monday May 11 did show a little on the Kawartha Lakes, but not to the extent of resulting in a large saving of reservoir water. The heavier rain (up to 27 mm) on the night of May 14 did give a good boost to most of the lakes in both watersheds. Before this rain, the Haliburton lakes averaged 81% on the 14th which was 14% below the ten year average.

On Friday, May 15 Haliburton Crews of the Trent-Severn Waterway reduced the flows to near minimum at most dams. The rain has given sufficient water on the Kawartha to carry through the long weekend without any extra required from the reservoirs.

Minimum flows are still running in the Otonabee River to assure the best use of the available water.

A year ago with quite similar conditions preceding it saw the start of a very wet period. So much rain came that navigation had to be suspended some places after only a week being open. We need some rain, but not that much.

Children enjoy parties

by Faith Aggett

It is always fun to have a party whether it is to celebrate a birthday, a holiday, making a new friend, or because of something someone did that was helpful, kind or brave.

A lot of organization of these gala events falls on the parents. But the occasion will gain a special excitement the more the child is involved in the preparations.

Often it is fun to choose a theme that will particularly appeal to the age of the invited guests or the season in which the event is held. Once the family has decided on a convenient date, invitations should be sent out, at the very least, two weeks in advance to allow others time to plan.

Besides stating the usual facts of time, place date, it would be helpful to state the planned activity - whether it will be a quiet, sit around, indoor, best-dress type of party or active, outdoor, next-to-best clothes type of party or dress for the theme type of party. A rule of thumb that is helpful to follow is the number of invited guests should not exceed the age of the child for whom the party is being held.

Next you will be putting some thought to refreshments to be served. Up to age four, it is wise to keep the food ideas very simple - in other words - don't waste good food on kids - they usually don't eat more than a few bites.

By age four you may find yourself making the parties revolve around lunch or dinner hours. The observant knowledgeable four year old is also bound to judge your cake by its cover. Whether it be a summer party with sandwiches, ice cream and cold drinks or a winter party with hot food in the form of hot dogs, french fries and hot chocolate, enticing little tidbits can be prepared for the older age group which can blend in with the chosen theme.

You will want the room in which the party is to be held to look pretty. Coloured balloons and streamers give a festive air. Place cards and tablecloths can be decorated and table centrepieces made. However, keep in mind the time factor and attention span of your young assistants - it could take weeks, plenty of encouragement and a rate of one placecard a night to be ready!

You will need to plan in advance some games to play. Keep in mind that young children enjoy most what they know best. Traditionally the same songs and games. Keep it simple and try to avoid competitive games unless everyone can get a prize. With growing attention spans variety can seep in with the addition of a puppet show, clown or magician. Or if you want to change the party routine, try a movie, a play or a sports activity. A hayride and a wiener roast or picnic, swimming and exploration party are nifty ideas.

The 3 year old can begin to learn the social graces. Greeting guests, opening presents, verbalizing thanks, saying good-bye are concepts to be discussed before the party and congratulated on afterwards.

Generally by age 4 the Moms and Dads need not accompany little guests. It is then up to the host's parents to be leader, songmistress, photographer, waitress and clean-up committee. But take heart, in a few hours it will be all over! And when reflecting over the party the child beamingly says, "We had a great day today, didn't we?" It makes it all worth while.

Guild news

by Leo Dobrzensky

After visiting the Indian show, many young students became interested in the Gallery and expressed the desire to become involved in its activities.

To this end, a student volunteer summer programme has been established. Interested students from grades 7-13 are invited to register, prior to June 26. An orientation meeting and brown bag picnic is planned for June 29.

Volunteers will make individual commitments as to the days and hours worked, but will be requested to let the summer intern know if they cannot fulfill their commitment on a given day.

Student volunteers will experience many behind-the-scenes activities which are essential for the smooth operation of an Art Gallery. They will also become involved in the promotion and production of shows and extension programming.

This year's summer intern is David Chambers, a local boy, presently attending York Mills Institute. David, who plans to enter George Brown College in the fall, will study graphic design. (Recently he has completed a 12x10 mural for a YMCA cafeteria).

David has won three scholarships and four honourable mentions from the Haliburton Guild of Fine Arts, as well as a bronze master's award from the Canadian Archery Associations and a bronze medal from the Red Cross. He is an enthusiastic sailor and canoeist who has navigated over 500 km in the Temagami and Haliburton areas and on the Mada-waska River. His interests also include work on the Collegiate newspaper. David, who enjoys working with people, is looking forward to his summer job at the Gallery which starts on June 29 and continues until the end of August.

Hello Readers, not much rain, but we should be thankful for what we did get. Our week started out with Church services Sunday evening in charge of Rev. and Mrs. Burgess, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Thompson. On Tuesday morning we had a Communion service by the United Church minister Rev. Moll.

On Thursday, the ladies of the Full Gospel Light

House came with our goodies for the tea party. The Minister played the piano and his wife sang. It was lovely. After lunch was served, the ladies all sang, it was really nice and we enjoyed it very much. Do come again. Dora Dawson had a short visit with some friends from the city, Mr. MacArthur and friend Leona. She also had Laverne and Grace Sisson to call on her. Guests for Jean Taylor were Mr. and Mrs.

Your health

Smoking takes its toll daily

The Times is pleased to introduce a new feature with this week's edition of the newspaper. Minden medical practitioner, Dr. Stephen Dawson, will be writing a series of columns concerned with health care and disease prevention. We welcome this opportunity to provide a medium for these timely and informative articles and, as always, welcome your comments. This week's column deals with smoking.

by Stephen Dawson, M.D.

Every day at the hospital and the clinic we see patients suffering from acute and chronic illnesses directly related to cigarette smoking. Many of these individuals will die a needless and premature death as a result of this habit.

Since smoking is still a wide-spread phenomenon which takes its toll daily, I have chosen as the topic for this first column, a discussion of the hazards associated with this practice.

Almost daily we hear about the toll that cigarette smoking takes among the general populace. There are many statistics to support the fact that smoking is indeed hazardous to your health. For example, a 30 year old, who is smoking 15 cigarettes a day, what many individuals might consider a moderate number, will experience a reduction in his life expectancy by over five years. In addition to the loss of these years to the individual's life, the quality of the life will also suffer.

Cigarettes produce more than simply smoke. In fact, scientists have identified more than 2000 substances which make up cigarette smoke. Here are some of the major ingredients and their impact on your health:

- NICOTINE: this is the drug which helps sustain the smoker's craving and dependency. There are 2 mg of nicotine in the average cigarette. Nicotine causes the body to release substances known as catecholamines, which in turn cause a rise in blood pressure and heart rate along with poor circulation to the arms and legs.

Nicotine also causes the pancreas to secrete less bicarbonate, which neutralizes the acid from the stomach. It also causes the platelets in the blood to become sticky and form blood clots.

- CARBON MONOXIDE: This gas causes poor transportation and utilization of oxygen in the body. The result is a smoker's body must produce more red blood cells to carry the oxygen. This is known as polycythemia.

- CARCINOGENS: These cancer causing agents are found in the "tar", which is the particulate matter left after the nicotine and moisture are extracted.

- TUMOUR ACCELERATORS: These are compounds such as indole and carbazole in cigarettes. They work in conjunction with the tar to accelerate the production of cancers.

- CILIOTOXINS AND PULMONARY IRRITANTS: These include ammonia, formaldehyde and nitrogen oxides. These chemicals kill off the microscopic hairs in the airways of the lungs. These hairs help sweep dust and other inhaled foreign material out of the lungs. These chemicals also cause the glands in the airway of the lungs to secrete more mucus, and the muscle that surrounds these airways to tighten, resulting in the wheezing and coughing that is often part of a smoker's life.

As I mentioned, these are just a few of the ingredients that are a part of cigarette smoke.

Next week I'll discuss the adverse effects smoking has on your body.

Roseau of Toronto and her niece is taking her to Lindsay today. Doris took some of us for a short bus ride on Tuesday to Kinmount, Irondale, Gooderham and Haliburton, stopping at Kawartha Dairy for their delicious ice cream cones in Minden. Thanks very much for the treat.

I regret telling you that Ada Allcorn is in hospital, we hope that she will be back soon.

Birthdays this month in here are: Fred Bamforth, Jean Taylor, Vera Harrison Dora Dawson, Ida Schell and Millie Wood.

Till next week. The only wise speed at which to live is God speed.

Have you read advertising by a mail order firm which to you seems too good to be true; it probably is.

Thousands of gullible people fall prey to extravagant claims by mail order companies each year.

That doesn't mean that all mail order deals should be shunned, most operate honestly, the cautious consumer should be able to avoid problems by using common sense. Don't be conned into buying material for get-rich material schemes, the mail order company is the only one who will benefit.

Watch out for ads promising exciting employment opportunities in foreign countries. Experience has shown that lists of companies sent to subscribers are from out-of-date want ads and tourist information.

Always compare, merchandise offered by mail may be available at similar or lower prices in your local store.

If you require help with forms or have a question that needs answering, contact the Haliburton County Information Centre in the Drag River Municipal Building Maple Ave., Haliburton, open daily 10:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m. or call 457-2733. Our office in Minden situated in the Municipal Building Milne Street, is open every Tuesday 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. or call 286-4100.

I heard the robin on Easter morn
Very cheerily singing his song
And I thought to myself
What a dear wee bird
To many joy he is bringing.
But not many hours after,
I lay in a hospital bed,
And the words the doctor said to me
Filled my heart with dread.
Instead of losing my husband dear
Why couldn't I have gone instead?
But the nurses were very nice to me
And of course the doctors were too.
And in a little over two weeks
I'm home, but not as good as new.
So Robin, keep singing your cheerful song
Every passing day.
And even if you don't know it,
You'll help others along the way.

Florence Robinson.

Couple mark 50th anniversary

Stan and Mildred Archer celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary May 16, with an open house at the Matabanick Inn on Boshkung Lake. The couple, who reside in Stanhope township operated the resort for almost forty years. The celebration was hosted by Don and Chris Archer and other members of the family. Some 250 attended the afternoon gathering including friends, neighbours and family members. The couple received formal congratulations from the Prime Minister of Canada and the Ontario Premier as well as a plaque presented by Stanhope Reeve Harry Davis on behalf of the County.
